Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 27 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain soon arriving, turning heavy at times.

This Evening and Tonight:
Misty and rain will move eastwards across all areas during the evening and overnight, and some heavier bursts are likely. Winds freshening with strong winds near some coasts later. Less cold than previous nights. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Thursday:
Rain, heavy at first across Norfolk, will clear away across the North Sea by early afternoon. Drier and brighter weather following with a brisk wind. Feeling milder. Some rain overnight. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Bright with showers on Friday. Colder with frost overnight. Saturday breezy and bright but rain may affect south. Sunday dry and bright. Llight winds. Rain and snow probably arriving later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.